PAULINE FREDERICK ADDS TO HER ARTISTIC LAURELS BY HER CONSCIENTIOUS PORTRAYAL

Pauline Frederick at Moore's Theatre in her new Paramount photo, "Resurrection," Wednesday, September 11. The picture is based upon the famous novel of Count Leo Tolstoy, and, like the story, it is a marvelous amalgam of Russian social and political conditions that changed Russia before the overthrow of the autocratic government. In the portrayal of Katinka, a Russian Gypsy girl who is betrayed by a Bolshevik, and who later becomes a social outcast destined to perish next to Siberia, Miss Frederick appeared to exceptional advantage. The role is a strong one and affords Miss Frederick ample opportunities for the display of her versatile emotional talents. The various scenes of the picture were faithfully reproduced by the cameraman, those showing Siberian wastes being especially effective. The support generally was of the high standard set and maintained by Paramount.

GRIMSBY AND DISTRICT HONOR ROLL

THE CANADIANS AND ANGLO-World wide prop. of Britain's Throne.

Plough beneath the Union Jack,
As they pushed the Boches back
Through Chippingly*, across the Somme to Dray;

While the Kallish cannons roar
Roared along the hills in Chippingly,
At the Scotch and Irish torn,
Through the German army corps,
In the fray.

The bronzed fighters of the French,
While the winter wolves of war,
Plunged down hill and over trench,
Through the mud, the mud and
Through the mud,

The blood stained fields of Picardy;

Shooting, shouting as they ran,
Like the roaring sons of Thor,
Guns to gun and man to man,
Giving all, if dying can Win the day.

When the battle line deploys
From the trench, upon the plain,
Khaki waves of Yankee boys
Crash the Hymn-like paper toys,
As the smoke wreaths hide old glory's stars.

Prayed by shot and torn by shell
At the Marne and the Aisne,
Where New England raised the yell,
"Come on boys and give them hell
Like the larks."

They had come from Texas plain
To the valeys of Oregon,
From Dakota's fields of grain
To the pine clad hills of Maine,
And Missouri's soldier leads them on;

They had come from Maryland
Where the sun shore greets the dawn,
Illinois, Ohio and
From the sunny Dixie land
To Youken.

They have come to keep men
free,
In the lands their fathers knew,
From the Hun's autocracy,
Safe for world's democracy,
Like their own beyond, the rolling brine,
They will strike the final blow,
With their feet upon a foe,
That has filled the world with sin,
On the Rhine.

There upon the German soil,
Seeking peace upon their knees,
The disturbers of our lot,
Shall be crushed within the coil
Of defeat. Comrades, in vain, they yell.

As the leaders of the world,
Gathered from the seven seas,
With their battle flags unfurled,
Kil the bands and see men hurled into hell.

GRIMSBY BAPT

Last Sabbath was the last of the series of the Sunday Services at GRIMSBY Beach. Dr. Williamson occupied the pulpit and preached a powerful sermon from the first chapter of Genesis. His text was "In the Beginning God." Many spoke of the pleasure and profit they enjoyed in listening to Dr. Williamson.

Dr. Palmer of Toronto, has been the leader of the song services for the most part of the season, and he is a "host" in himself, never been at the Beach enjoyed such services. They have been most enjoyable and profitable to those who had the good fortune to be favored with hearing them.

GRIMSBY AND DISTRICT CASUALTY LIST

In one of the most successful strategical moves that the Allied forces have made on the Western Front in years, the Canadian Corps is well to the fore, and is making a name for itself that will go down in history for all time to come. This is not the first time Our Corps has distinguished itself, but rather is but a continuation of the reputation the Original Division gained for itself on that memorable 22nd of April, three years ago.

In all the engagements that Our Corps has been, and they have been a-plenty, this District has been well represented, and although the casualties have been more or less heavy, the citizens of the District for whom these brave boys are fighting the enemy are taking the news of the boys being killed or wounded with an amazing philosophical calm that only too ill covers the true feelings of their hearts, but which shows that we are of sturdy race, willing to sacrifice everything in the cause of Right.

The Casualty List of this District, from our last issue, up to the time of going to press, today follows:

Killed in Action

PESTER, Arthur D. Jordan, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pester, formerly of Jordan, but now of St. Catharines, was reported as "Missing" last week, and it was hoped that he would eventually turn up safely, either as a prisoner, or to his own home; but this was not realized until Tuesday, Sept. 3, 1918, when Mr. and Mrs. Pester received a further telegram to the effect that he had been killed in action on August 2. Arthur Pester was known to quite a few of the young people of GRIMSBY, as his father had been manager of Jas. A. Livingston's Jordan Farm for several years, and Arthur worked on the Livingston Fruit Farm, GRIMSBY, along with the late Pte. Edg. G. Pester, who died of wounds on August 1.

PALMER, Tpr. A. C. of Beamsville, is reported wounded in the official lists of 26-8-18. Tpr. Palmer enlisted with the 1st C. M. R. in August, 1915, proceeded to England, and thence to France, with that unit in October, 1916. After over a year at the front, he was wounded in December, 1917, and was awarded the Distinguished Conduct Medal for "daring nap within enemy's wire, shooting enemy, making his way to enemy's parapet, and gaining valuable information by his action." He resides in Beamsville.

STONEY, C. L. Stoney Creek, is brother of Mr. Claude Stoney, who is gardener at the Minico Delimano, Main Street, West.

ALLIEZ, M. C. who was reported wounded in our last week's list, is now reported as dangerously ill, in addition to his being wounded, and is in Hospital at Rouen.

SUGAR WILL BE MORE PLENTIFUL

Quits a panic was started among the fruit growers of the Niagara District a week or two ago, when a statement from the Canada Food Board was printed in the public press to the effect that only one and one-half pounds of sugar, per month, per person, would be allowed to a household.

This statement caused the house-holders to feel that they would not get sufficient sugar to do up their fruit, and the result was that the price of fruit was affected and during the canning season. Just at present there is a temporary shortage of sugar owing to transportation difficulties, etc.

The Food Board is doing all it can to relieve the situation, realizing that it is imperative that sugar should be available for the purposes mentioned and expect that the acute situation which exists now, will be relieved shortly.

It would appear from Mr. Bertram's letter, that the statement that was given out to the press was in the nature of a request to the people to restrict themselves to a pound and a half of sugar, per person, per month, for personal use only, and this statement had been misinterpreted by the public, so much, that they would get no sugar for canning purposes.

The object of the Board was to conserve sugar for personal use in order that there might be more available for canning purposes. The trouble was that either the Board in giving out the statement, or the newspapers in giving publicity to it, failed to seize the intention of the Board plainly, and led the general public into error, much to the detriment of the fruit growers and shippers of the Niagara District.

Mr. Bertram's letter follows—

Canada Food Board, Ottawa, August 29, 1918.

Mr. James A. Livingston,
Grimsbay, Ont.
Re Sugar for Fresh Preserving
Dear Sir,

We are in receipt of your favour of the 26th inst., calling our attention to the condition of the fruit market owing to wide spread belief among the house-holders and some retailers, that the Canada Food Board had issued an order limiting the amount of sugar to be used or sold to 1½ pounds per month per person.

The statement that was given to Others in the cast are George Nichols and Carl Forman, two of the screen's best loved "old men" and Lydia Knott who has portrayed so many another roles. Miss Bennett is at her charming best in "The Keys of the Righteous" which was directed by Jerome Shoren under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Pyett of North GRIMSBY, desire to thank their neighbors and friends for the sympathy expressed and kindness shown in their recent troubles.

It is very difficult, at times, for the Editors of this journal to give a correct resume of the service of those from this District, who become casualties. That's where the Honor Roll, if properly kept up, would be of assistance. Send in the particulars, and J. A. M. Livingston, G. W. V. A. Secretary will do the rest.

Public Notice

Notwithstanding frequent warnings and their own repeated caution some merchants and others have allowed their employees to damage decaying fruits and vegetables, pickles, spoiled canned goods and other kind of tame and disease-producing garbage refuse in forbidden places, notably in one place, namely, at the bridge and on the hill-back of the creek at the foot of Elizabeth St. The players themselves will be held responsible for the flagrant offense.

ALL decaying, per cent, excessive, or foul smelling garbage and refuse must be buried, or burnt in some field remote from human habitation. Laziness in this matter would be a "breach of trust" on the part of the Board of Health.

EVERY householder is responsible for the disposal of his own garbage and refuse and last but not least his "stable manure."

STOLEN CAR RECOVERED— SUCH AS IT IS

On Thursday night while going up the McNeilly Mountain Road, just east of E. D. Smith's, Mr. J. W. Harper discovered a Ford car in the ditch, with no lights, and upon investigation found it to be apparently deserted.

Mr. Harper found that the car had had a pretty rough passage since where in it journeys, and had apparently been abandoned after its license had played out.

This car, upon investigation proved to be the five-passenger Ford touring-car, the property of Mr. W. H. Millard, near Winona, which was stolen from his garage on the night of Wednesday, August 21st. It being identified by the engine number, alone, as the license plates had been removed.

Almost everything portable, in and about the car, had also been removed, even the tires, and one of the wheels was in a very sorry condition.

This is a piece of vandalism that can not be condoned, and if the authorities do not set machinery in action at once to take and punish the perpetrators, one's property can not be considered as safe, say place.

An epidemic of car-stealing has been spreading over the county for the past year or two, and there never seems to be any satisfaction gained by the car-owners, from the police and constables, and it seems a great shame that one's property should be at the mercy of whoever takes a notion to "lift" it. At times, without better measures of protection being taken by the authorities, higher up.

In the present instance, a car was stolen on the 21st and was not discovered until the 23rd, when the discovery was merely an accident, and then it was found to be within five miles of the place from where it was stolen; descriptions of the car had been filed and sufficient publicity had been given to the theft so that, on the supposition that the car had been within the above mentioned radius all the time up until its discovery, it certainly seem a veritable thing that no one was able to "get something" on the thieves.

The Ontario Government, and the County Crown Attorneys are largely responsible for the loose methods of law enforcement. The government refuses to pay the constables and the Crown Attorneys make no attempt to prevent crime but rest content with prosecuting at as much per, after the crime is committed and the criminal is caught—that is if he is caught, which sometimes happens.

WESTERN CROP DAMAGE REPORT GREATLY MAGNIFIED—WANT MORE HARVESTERS AT ONCE

Reports previously published regarding the damage by frost to the crops in Saskatchewan were unduly pessimistic. Frequent showers and favorable weather have changed the outlook and it is apparent that the great Province of Saskatchewan will have a normal crop. This is evidenced by Western demands for Farm Laborers as not less than 10,000 are required immediately for harvesting.

FUEL SUPPLY FREE

To Municipalities of the Province of Ontario

A view in the hardwood forests in the Algonquin Park.

OWING to the seriousness of the fuel situation at the present time, the Government of Ontario would urge upon all the farmers or others who may have wood lots, to assist at this time by making provision for their fuel supply from such lots.

The Government would also draw the attention of the various Municipalities throughout the Province to the necessity of taking some Municipal action to secure fuel supply. To this end the Government has decided to issue to any Municipality in Ontario a permit to cut fire wood in Algonquin Park or from other Crown Lands free of charge. For particulars as to localities, conditions of cutting, etc., apply to

WANTED TO THANK DONORS NOT BOTHERED

After This, It Would Be Folly to Say That Sellers Do Not Appreciate Gifts.

Mrs. Anna Stever Richardson writes to the Woman's Home organ: "As for knitted garments, I wish you could have been with me one day at a certain naval base in New York, where the crew of a ship which had been accidentally sunk in every harbor entered the captain's office to receive their keep supply of knitted garments. They had all lost their clothing, largely escaping with their lives."

"The boys lined up like the well-trained sailors they were, tucked their supplies under their arms and marched out again, headed by an officer. But the moment they broke ranks outside headquarters, each boy became absorbed in his own particular package of knitted garments and comfort bag, turning the sweaters, the helmets, the wristlets and even the bags inside out, poking inquiring fingers into every corner.

"What are they looking for—stow?" I asked the young officer at my elbow. "Dear, no," said my guide with a laugh. "Letters, notes, the address of the lady who knitted the garment or filled the bag. They want to write back and say thank you!"

"After finishing their frenzied search for notes and addresses, nothing can ever make me believe that the boys do not appreciate such gifts."

JOKE ON DESTROYER CAPTAIN

Spent Hours Searching for Convoy Which It Turned Out Never Had Been Lost.

Humorous stories as well as tragic tales comes from the seas, even in wartime. A British naval officer was relating with great glee to his friends at the club a story about one of his Majesty's destroyers which was detailed to escort a transport filled with troops.

This transport, it seems, was commanded by a captain who, unlike most of his crew, was naive and gullible. The night was dark and dirty, and naturally no lights were showing. In the dark and darkness the destroyer lost sight of her convoy. Her commander, who was one of the nervous, peppy sort, dashed up and down and around and about but could not pick her up. Of course the naval officer blamed the captain of the convoy for not keeping in touch and told tidings about the membership of the convoy's captain that would not read well in print.

Finally after several hours' vain search the destroyer's commander thought his best plan would be to run for the nearest port and there see if he could get any news of the missing transport. The destroyer thrashed her way through a heavy sea at a speed of 30 knots. Just as she entered the harbor she picked up a plaintive wail from the convoy: "Need we follow you no longer?"

Art in a Butcher Shop.

When butchers have anniversaries or department stores and half-centuries of service flowers are always present in abundance and a butcher always has observed this. Yesterday, when he noted by his calendar that the next day would end ten years of faithful service, he decided that flowers were in order. He, fearing that others would not remember the date so easily, had arranged them artistically as his art in dicing sausages allowed him. But when customers began to come in later he noticed smiles. At first he took this for commendation and smiled back, but later he walked all the way around the counter and inspected them more carefully. And then it was that he decided flowers could never, never become his friends. For resting in a cluster which was supported by the sausages was a banner reading "Rest in Peace," and the ribbon which upheld the standard of the roses was propped against the flowers. "We will meet you over there," which brings to mind the immortal inscription by the reaper who interred the champion whosoever chose to leave the world.

Policeman Wins War Incident.

Lieutenant Turner of Saskatchewan won his spurs at Ypres. Some time ago he was taking his rest from the duties in a prominent London restaurant when a man beside him, noticing his blindness, took it gently from him and held it while he slipped his arms into the sleeves. Believing the service was rendered by an attendant, Lieutenant Turner offered him a shilling as a tip.

"That won't be necessary," kindly said a friend of the lieutenant, with an apologetic nod to the man who had held the coat.

"The man who helped you was General ——"

The blind soldier blushed and asked the pardon of the general, but the latter was equal to the occasion.

"I won't accept your apology, but I'll accept your shilling and I'll bring it to a souvenir of one of the best soldiers who ever fought for Canada and the Empire."

Finland Wins Out Bridge Pits.

Finland, which has declared its independence from Russia, has long been a buffer state between the latter and Sweden. After Peter the Great conquered Finland in 1721 and annexed its easternmost province, Uusimaa, Sweden made repeated but unsuccessful efforts to regain this province. Finally Alexander I in 1809, brought all the Finnoo territories under the Muscovite yoke. Since about 1890, however, Finnish liberties have been greatly curtailed. The powers of the Finns did not increase and its constitution practically abrogated. In 1906 a Russian dictator was appointed and the country finally split into two states: arbitrary arrests and humiliations became daily occurrences. No means of Redemption was left untried. The Finns are of Mongolian extraction and number about 2,000,000.

A Home Wrecked.

"I can't bear the man," Gibson doesn't look like a man who would beat his wife."

Tributes of German Airmen.

From a illustration appearing in a report of La Guerre Aérienne it appears that Baron von Richthofen, a German in command of a German fighting squadron or "Fighting Circus," has a special hobby for aerobatics with his combatants. The walls of his "h" are decorated with the numerous distinguished marks of machines which have shot down, while the chandelier consists of a guitar string from a violin machine, according to the report.

BY WORRY GAS MOST VALUABLE AS FUEL and Man's Case Most Troubles in Coding Not Induces Careless Name.

Comparatively Little is Now Being Used for the Purpose of Giving Direct Illumination.

Although gas is being used more than ever before, its direct employment for lighting is almost a thing of the past. Our modern "gas lights" are electric burners where the light is not given out by the gas at all. It is mixed with air to produce a dim blue flame with great heating power. This flame serves to heat a mantle of mineral salts white hot, and it is this incandescent mantle that gives the light. Here the gas is used not for its light, but for its heat and it is as a fuel that gas is now most valuable, says the Literary Digest.

According to an address delivered recently in England by President Harry Jones of the Institution of Civil Engineers, and reviews by Nature (London), not 50 per cent of the whole gas output is now used for direct illumination.

The threat confidence the deserter had its effect to the extent that in a white friend, a lawyer, or what he had been told, attention to them.

"Isn't pay any?" They wouldn't advise the boy like that.

But the negro about what his brethren were going to do.

"If they were all right," said the negro,

"but it wouldn't do no good to have them hanging if I was dead."

"I know there had been something wrong with you," said the lawyer.

"I have seen you hanging for some time, and if you don't stop it the first thing you know you will go out and commit suicide over your troubles."

"Indeed," said the negro.

"I ain't no chance of hell. Whenever I git to worryin' bout makin' troublous I just goes to sleep."

Without the direct aid of the gas industry . . . it would have been perfectly impossible for this country to wage the campaigns of the last three years, or even for say but a billion miles the overwhelming floods of explosives that were poured upon us when I first was asked to take charge of the manufacture and production of explosives it took me but a few days to realize my absolute dependence on your great industry."

ELIJAH MAY ENJOYS FLIGHT

Appreciated the Thrill of Intricate Aeriel Maneuvers Performed by Experienced Pilot.

Thomas D. Reilly, the blind congressman from the Twin Cities district, made flights with Col. Charles Lee of the British royal flying corps in Washington recently. It was the first time he had been up in an airplane.

Congressman Reilly was not satisfied with the plain "joy ride" Colonel Lee had given him. When they returned to earth after circling over the city at an altitude of about two thousand feet, the blind representative asked for more thrills.

"Fine! Fine!" he exclaimed, as the machine came to a halt. "But, Colonel Lee, if you wouldn't think me a fool, I would like to go back up and turn over."

The biplane was wheeled into position again, and off it shot on a trip of real acrobatics. Climbing rapidly to about two thousand feet, Colonel Lee started the machine into a series of dips and dives, spirals and other aerial antics calculated to make one's hair stand on end. To complete the thrill, the airplane was made to roll over sideways and then drop into a beautiful nose spin.

The passenger's dazed eyes were blinking with delight when his wife ran onto the field to assist him from the machine.

Conservative Muse of History.

It is the unhappy usage of our schools and universities to study the history of mankind only during periods of mechanical unprogressiveness. The historical ideas of Europe range between the time when the Greeks were going about the world on foot or horseback or in galleys or sailing ships, to the days when Napoleon, Wellington and Nelson were moving about at very much the same pace in much the same vehicles and vessels. At the advent of steam and electricity the muse of history holds her nose and shuts her eyes. Science will still stand and get the better of a modern disease, as for example, sleeping sickness, in spite of the fact that it has no clinical standing, but our history schools would be shocked at the bare idea of studying the effect of modern means of communication upon administrative areas, large or small. This defect in our historical training has made our minds politically sluggish.—H. G. Wells in New Republic.

Wartime Footwear in Holland.

The manufacture of slippers with wooden soles and cloth tops is a war-time industry which has sprung up in Holland, reports the United States department of commerce. The nose and toe parts of the slippers are formed of twill, corduroy and woven stuffs. All these materials are relatively cheap, and yet make comfortable and durable slippers. The sole parts are made by hand and the wooden soles by machinery.

In view of the mounting prices of leather footwear, these combination slippers, which retail for the equivalent of $1 a pair for the best quality, are selling rapidly. It is claimed that they are entirely satisfactory for wear in the house and are practicable for women engaged in indoor occupations.

Government Finds Father.

The death rate among children born out of wedlock is notoriously and universally far higher than that among legitimate offspring. In the borough of Hampstead, London, it is 107 as against 80, and in New South Wales it is 102 against 67. Norway, however, has reduced the death rate to normal through the government assuming the responsibility of finding the father or of setting the father in case he cannot be found.

Keep Your Paper FOR THE RED CROSS

The GRIMSBY Women's Institute are still anxious to get paper to be sold for the benefit of their Red Cross work. All parties who have old papers or magazines or old rubber should keep them for this purpose.

Fold your paper about a foot square and stack them one on top of the other until you have a bundle about a foot deep, then tie it up with good strong string, one that will not break easily. Keep your magazines separately and tie them up in bundles with strong cord. When you have a sufficient number bring them to the paper building on the east side of the Independent Block, GRIMSBY.

Those who cannot deliver the paper themselves to the building, should notify the Independent Office and an automobile will call for the paper.

Periodical collections will be made in the Village, but the parties, who make collections, are busy men and all papers should be tied up in bundles, so that they can be put into an automobile quickly, so as to save time. Parties in the township, who have no way of delivering the paper themselves, may arrange with their neighbor to bring them to the paper house on his day or in his automobile.

The Salvation Army from Hamilton has been gathering papers in GRIMSBY and district, but as this organization has no tabernacle in GRIMSBY, the GRIMSBY people should keep their paper for their local Red Cross benefit. If a thousand families save all the paper, they will soon make a car load.

Do not roll the paper into small rolls as they have to be unrolled before they go in the boxes and this work costs almost as much as the paper is worth.

If these instructions are followed carefully the Red Cross can make some money out of waste paper.

MONEY TO LOAN

Parties wishing to pay off old debts, to purchase more land, or to make improvements, can secure other private or company money at reasonable rates.

We in Canada are now face to face with war conditions, both as to foodstuffs and wearing apparel. Clothing is scarce and rapidly becoming very dear. Three large boats containing hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of English woolens, for Canada, were sunk by Submarines in last month. We will not assume that "Victory" will last after a few weeks. We have made-made, suits from $10 to $15 and make up extra order from $15.00 to $15.50. We manufacture our own goods and can positively save you money on any clothing you may intend to buy. We would also advise that the sooner you buy the better, as the assortments are better now, and prices lower, or they will be later on. Assuming you of our best services at all times. THE VIBELAND PICNIC

(P. G. H. P.)

A large crowd attended the annual picnic of the Lincoln County Board of Agriculture held on August 2d in the beautiful grove at Victoria Hall, opposite the celebrated Rittenhouse School and in close proximity to the Experimental Farm.

After the farmers and their wives and daughters had done full justice to the excellent viands provided, an adjournment was made to Victoria Hall, where an excellent program of speeches, interspersed with music and recitations was enjoyed.

President C. H. Claus took the chair and Herbert Hunter acted as Secretary.

In opening the meeting Mr. Claus declared that he had no intention of making a speech. He thought that farmers took fewer holidays than any other class of the community and he had therefore insisted on a day being set apart for a Farmers' picnic. He then introduced the first speaker, Mr. Elliot, District Representative for Lincoln County.

Mr. Elliot said in part, "In my work I need the hearty co-operation of the farmers, both men and women. There are several outstanding features which I wish to mention. 1. The great need for more and better organization amongst farmers and fruit growers particularly the co-ordination of the fruit growers' present organizations. 2. Some remedy for the numerous deaths of fruit trees from disease, etc. Mr. McCubbin agrees with me that much of this is due to wet feet, pointing to the necessity of more underdraining. 3. Winter Courses. A winter course was held at Wellandport last year. Next winter I intend to hold a four or five weeks' course for fruit and vegetable growers at St. Catharines, chiefly for the older men. There are between 80 or 90 tractors in Lincoln County now, most of which are doing good work. In December I expect to hold a special course on tractors at St. Catharines."

After a very pleasing recitation by Miss House, Mr. Claus introduced to the audience the chief speaker of the day, the Hon. G. H. Henry, Minister of Agriculture for the Province.

Mr. Henry said in part: "There is a great future for our boys and girls if they take an interest in the farm. I am only a Baby Minister. I am here today to study conditions in different sections of the Province in order to see what can be done to better our conditions. I bear to you greetings from Mr. William Hearst and his Government. We have a receptive ear for any rural improvements for we know that the future prosperity of Ontario largely depends on the prosperity of the farmers. There is much to be done yet, although we have well equipped Experimental Stations and a College extending into Counties through the District Representatives.

"I was at the annual gathering of these Representatives recently at Guelph. They are doing good work and the farmers are becoming more and more anxious for their help and advice. Practical farmers are handicapped in studying many of their problems and need the Government to take a hand in finding a solution.

"This section of country here is the most intensive in Canada and the problems are more diverse here than elsewhere and diseases of plant life are more numerous, also noxious insects. There is a wonderful development in Agriculture at the present time. We are getting many things out of the war which hasten development in many lines, particularly those of Agriculture. Farm tractors bid fair to revolutionize Agriculture.

As citizens we Canadians have made a great advance. We have stepped from being a Colony to being an important partner in the Empire.

"Canada has found herself. We are paying the price, however, and our boys are laying down their lives on Flanders' fields from day to day. We must appreciate the spirit in which these boys went forth. Their years were few, but their effort large, as will be shown in History's page. We, who are behind them, must carry on and develop our country. I am looking for a great advance in the future. We are, however, going to have a lot of difficult problems.

"Material development" is not the only thing, or moral and spiritual side must also be taken care of. We are part of a great Empire which is playing a most important part in history at present. Each one of us must do his part."

Mrs. Parsons, the local delegate from the Women's Institute said in part: "I am glad to see a man at the helm who has made a study of Agriculture. No department is as important. Agriculture is the root and branch, the great aim of this Province. We all have hard places to go through, but life has its compensations. If we only wait and live long enough."

"Last winter I came into your district with Mr. Condonhouse attending the Institute Meetings, and I have come back to live here for a few years, at all events while the war lasts.

"The hope of Canada lies in her children, her glory is in her manhood. We have therefore introduced Medical Inspection in the schools. At an examination held recently only 150 out of 15,000 children could pass as physically O. K. You have found that conditions are not right, and I say 'rectify the bad conditions.' If buildings are wrong, change them. If the children are wrong, introduce medical clinics, and operate if necessary. Don't rest, ladies of the Institute in protection and patriotism."

"We have found in some places school trustees, whose only motto was 'Keep down the expense.' Old buildings are allowed to stand, etc.

"GRIMSBY BEACH
Many Cottagers leave the Park and go home on account of the Rehabilitation and the opening of the schools. But the month of September is the best of the season.
The Superintendent of G. T. R. Mr. Gossan, was at the Beach station last week and found everything in good order."

Children's eyes get dim and their health is impaired.

"To the young women, I say, in whose hands does the future of the country lie? In those of women as never before. The additional responsibility of being both father and mother. You must not stop till victory comes. This war is your war."

Mrs. Parsons read a message from one of her sons at the war, as follows: "Mother, be of great courage, if the house has come to us to pay the supreme price, be thankful."

After another excellent recitation from Miss House, P. H. Moyer, of Campbell, made a few interesting and witty extempore remarks, and then the Chairman called on Mr. H. St. Venant, of Weston, who represented the Dairy Interests before the Dairy Commission at Ottawa, to speak.

Mr. St. Venant said in part: "The value of our hives from each bee colony as this is quite remarkable. It is often thrown up to see that a larger proportion of men have gone to the war from the cities and towns. This is not true. All classes are now shoulder to shoulder, fighting and working for the best interests of the country.

The farmers are emerging from a condition in which we have been long placed. Independence has been ours and we have looked at things as farmers only, and have lacked breadth of view. We are coming into our own now, and it was necessary for us to have had the experience we have been passing through.

"Over 90 per cent. of our population are now in the cities and towns as compared with 36 per cent. 20 years ago. The drift has been to the towns to engage in manufacturing, etc. After this the drift will be back to the country.

"I believe there will be a great foreign emigration to Canada after the war and we must take care to keep the country British."

"Farmers' movements in the past have not been very satisfactory, so far as I am concerned, that of the Orange, for example. Why? Because they had not the right viewpoint. The Farmers' Club is a good movement. Nothing great or grand is accomplished except by sacrifice. Five or six men in a community often take all the responsibility. If farmers are going to do anything worthwhile, every farmer must put his shoulder to the wheel."

"A great advance has been made in the improvement of school grounds and buildings lately, thanks to the war since the beginning of the war and people are becoming self-centred."

After some music from the Silverdale Band, all joined in singing God Save the King.

DISEASES OF OLD BIRDS AND BREEDING STOCK RECENTLY

As soon as the breeding season is over, get rid of all male birds used in the breeding pens. When the egg yield drops in the early summer, or when the egg yield does not pay for the feed, pull off all hens over two years old and even the year-olds will pretty well. Poultry at this time of the year will bring a better price than later and feed and space will be saved for the best of the year-olds and the growing chicks. Old hens as a rule, especially of the heavier varieties, do not lay for fed in late summer eggs.

Sell the young cockerels, otherwise they are ready throughout the summer. Don't keep everything till the fall. Whenever the price is good, sell the cockerels as broilers or as small roasters.

In an experiment carried on at the Experimental Farm in the spring of 1917 with Leghorn chickens six sic of the cockerels paid all of $1.00 for incubation, brooding and feed for themselves and pellets up until the first of September. When the pellets went into winter quarters on November 1st, they had cost over and above what had been paid by the sale of the cockerels just 1.5 cents each. This experiment showed not only that it paid to sell the cockerels early, but it also demonstrated that pellets could be raised much cheaper than they could be bought in the fall.

GRIT AND LIME NECESSARY

and lime, not grit or lime, are supplied to hens which are protecting eggs. It will be observed that the first expression, "grit and lime," includes both, while the last expression, "grit or lime," means only one at a time. The same expression might be applied to feed and water. If we give hens feed or water instead of feed and water, it would mean failure.

Grit is some sharp, hard substance used by the fowl to grind the food in the gizzard. The most common form of grit is a silicate, the commonest being used more than any other. This, however, contains no lime, and although the hen may be furnished an abundance of grit, would not get lime from it to make the egg shells. Or they may be furnished an abundance of lime, yet not having any grit to grind the food. Lime may be supplied by giving the hens crushed lime rock, oyster shell, clam shell, or by giving a mixture made of lime and sand such as our ancestors used in the cracks of log houses, or a plaster made of lime and sand.

One mistake often made is to try to supply grit and lime in the same substance. The trouble is if the material is hard enough for grit it is too hard to dissolve fast enough to make enough egg shells for high egg production, and if the material is soft enough to dissolve readily it is too soft for grit to grind the food.

Grit and lime are supplied at all times to pens which make a high egg producing record. The hens in the egg laying contest are furnished grit in the form of crushed lime rock thrown into the yard, and lime is furnished in the form of crushed oyster shell in hoppers.

INTESTINAL PARALYSIS

"Fruit-a-lives" Quickly Relieved This Chronic Trouble

DR. CAMPBELL STEWART, MONTREAL.

"In my opinion, no other medicine is so curative for Constipation and Indigestion as 'Fruit-a-lives'."

I was a sufferer from these complaints for five years, and my ordinary occupation, Music, brought about a kind of Intestinal Paralysis; with nasty Headaches, belching gas, drowsiness after eating, and pain in the back.

I was induced to try 'Fruit-a-lives' and now for six months I have been entirely well!"

sers. The next moment a thin man through the crowd as a participant in a car race called out:

"The driver's eyes ain't steady."

Chester Kent, already suspicious in his eyes, while flattered, had made himself doubly so by drawing out a monocle and deftly fixing it in his right eye. He looked over the body to look into the face, and his head jerked back the instant trifles bending lower, he scrutinized the unsmiling visage. When he passed on his lips were pursed in the manner of one who whistles absently.

He resumed his seat inside Sedgwick. Chancing to look down at the monocle, Sedgwick started and stared. Kent's knuckle, as seen through the glass, stood forth, monstrous and distorted, every line of the bronzed skin showing like a furrow.

The monocle was a powerful magnifying lens.

The sheriff's heavy voice rose. "Any one here present recognize or identify the deceased?" he drawled, and, within a flash, the crowd dispersed again into scattered groups.

"The hearing is adjourned," twirled the medical officer. "Burial of the unknown will take place at noon. All are invited."

During their slow progress to the door Kent kept up a running comment, which Sedgwick supported with equal eagerness. The crowd, dawdling and undecided, pressed around them. As they went through the doorway they were jostled by a sudden pressure, following which Kent felt a hand on his shoulder. He turned to face the sheriff.

"Better get out of town quick," advised Sedgwick in a hush whisper.

"Thank you," said Kent in a clear and cheerful voice. "Where can I get some tobacco?"

Sedgwick's shaggy grin the broad, said some infectious bark of him. "End of the square to the right."

"Much obliged," said Kent and strided blithely to his car, followed by Sedgwick. As they took their seats and started slowly through the crowd Sedgwick inquired abruptly:

"Do you crave tobacco at this particular moment worse than you do the peace and quietness of the grave fields?"

"Policy, my young friend," reported Kent. "I wish I could think up a dozen more errands to do. The more recently we get out of town the less likely we are to be followed by a flight of vultures. I don't want a perfectly good ranchman visited by a mob."

Both of them went to Merritt's store, where Kent earned the reputation from Merritt of being "a useful damn bony about what he gets," and came out into a considerable part of the populace, which had followed. As they re-entered the sheriff put his foot on the running board.

"Sheriff take my tip," he said slyly.

"Very well," returned Kent. "There is no arrest, then?"

"Not just now."

A peculiar smile lit otherwise stiff corner of the sheriff's long face. "Not at any other time," he continued. He then in the crowd. When he had won the open road beyond the village Sedgwick remarked:

"Guess like the sheriff is taking."

"Poor Sedgwick," said Kent, chuckling. "No other life is open to him. He's in a tight place. But it isn't the sheriff that's worrying me."

"What?"

"Garnett Jim."

"What did the sheriff mean by asking Garnett Jim where he was the night of the murder?"

"Murder?" said Kent grimly.

"What murder?"

"The murder of the unknown woman, of course. I think that decent Jim killed her and is trying to save the men that come hunting after her."

"Humph!"

"But if the sheriff knows where Garnett Jim was at the time of the killing, he can't suppose me guilty. I wonder if he really does believe me guilty?"

"If he does, he doesn't care. His concern is quite apart from your guilt."

"It's too much for me," continued the artist.

"And for me. That is why I am going back to the village."

"But I thought you were frightened."

"If I stayed away from everything that alarms me," said Kent. "I'd never have a tooth pulled or speak to a woman under society. I'm a simple soul, Sedgwick, but I don't think I shall be in any danger to Amanita as long as I'm alone. Here we are. Out with you! I'll be back by evening."

To an amazement Kent, turning into the village square, found the crowd still lingering. A new force of interest had drawn to a spot opposite Merritt's store. There a wagon, decorated in the most gaudy style of circus art, above brilliant in yellow and green. Brightly before some the front presented typical admiring the legend.

"Simon P. Groot, STATION PURCHASES."

A stout projection wedged on one of the rear wheels. Hermetically the proprietor of the vehicle while holding him in a window displayed his wares. It was evident that Simon P. Groot followed the tragic career of the illustrious Lawler dealing in that wide range of commodities roughly comprised in the Latin term, "Terror actions." Kent as struck with the capricious splendor of the man's gestures, the dignity of his robust figure, the sweep of a broad white mustache, spread sideways like the ripples from a boat's stem. Two blushing maidens merrily marred the subjects of Simon P. Groot's presence—a pair of pinkish, exquisitely etched to each other, a mere soft and innocent little girls.

"There, gentlemen, and ladies," said Simon P. Groot with ring, "there is that place of rare blossoms and infant

"Murder," echoed a voice from the doorway. Garnett Jim, half Indian, half negro face alight with fury, stood there pointing with stiffened hand at Sedgwick. "Dah fe / murdeh!"

He was a tall, gaunt, thin man.

"Murder," cried a woman.

MADGE EVANS SUPREMELY CHARMING IN NEW DRAMA,
"WANTED—A MOTHER"

New World-Picture Presents Dramatic in Absorbing Story and Fascinating Role

Madge Evans is supremely charming in her new drama, "Wanted—A Mother." It is an absorbing story and a fascinating role, and Madge's thousands and thousands of admirers will be more than pleased with the picture and Madge's part in the attraction.

The story tells of the adventures of a little girl whose mother is dead and of her efforts to find a suitable mother for herself as she grievously misses the tender care and loving kindness that only a mother can give. The quest for a mother leads the little girl into many surprising and interesting adventures, and Madge Evans in this role does some of the very best acting that she has ever done. "Wanted—A Mother" has been given a splendid staging. It is a mighty good picture and will make glad the heart of every movie fan who sees it. It will be shown on Monday, September 4th at Moore's Theatre and co-starred with Madge in the production is George MacQuarrie.

At Port of Betheda.
An English reservist, who was living near Betheda, Ont., before the war, writes to his old neighbors from the Post of Betheda, Palestine: "I tasted the water—not too clean!—and in order to do so I had to descend lots of steps, as the well is deep down in the ground, at the entrance one may, if one wishes, find 17 different languages—the accent of the healing described in the fifth chapter of John is quite sufficient choice, one would imagine, but 'Taft' thought differently, and not finding his mother tongue represented, promptly wrote it all out in Welsh from his own Testament. So now there are 18 different versions for visitors to choose from."

"Don't you think there is too much tendency to profanity in our language?"
"Yes. And it's going to be worse. I understand the government is going to open up more mines, and that means more mining."

COOK PROVED HERO

His Deed of Bravery Deserves to Be Recorded.

Joseph Martino's Saving of Comrade Washed Overboard Proof That Courage in Navy Is Not Conceded to the Fighters.

Many brave things have been done by the men of these hard-driven American ships, and one of them stands out superbly, writes Ralph D. Paine in the Saturday Evening Post. It was the rescue of a man overboard in the midst of a storm. This vessel was caught out in it while on convoy duty and her survival was little short of a miracle. The French marines called it the worst blow the Bay of Biscay had seen in eight years. Its violence was that of a hurricane, with a wind velocity approaching a hundred miles an hour, such a storm as would have severely pounded and damaged a great Atlantic liner.

The ship was more or less knocked into kindling wood, both masts broken off and rolled out of her, all three hours smashed and carried away, decks gutted, life rails splintered, compartments flooded. The ship was rolling 20 degrees, or almost flat on her side, and when she plunged, more than half the length of her keel was in the air. In the midst of it the steering gear jammed and the ship was likely to break to and founder unless it could be cleared. The chief quartermaster, H. H. Robertson, volunteered for the job and was presently washed overboard, carried off to leeward on the back of a roaring sea.

There was not one chance to a million of saving him. He was as good as dead, and vanquished. The ship was running before the storm and a quarter of an hour passed before she could be brought to, a very dangerous maneuver, which again swept her clean. The quartermaster had not gone down, nor was visible on the ice bow, swimming with the courage of a man who refuses to surrender to the inevitable. Lives were thrown to him, but he was unable to reach them. Even if the boat had not been smashed it would have been impossible to launch one. A life raft was shoved over, and it floated toward Robertson so that he could catch it and hang on.

This was merely in proving his agony, however, for he could do nothing more to help himself. He had been in the water 27 minutes, buffeted, strained, drowning. The month was December, the temperature of the sea 28 degrees. Among those who looked on and pitied the exhausted man who had made such a pecky fight of it was the ship's cook, Joseph Martino. His rounds of pots and pans being wracked and swashed, he turned his attention to this affair of the drowning quartermaster. Knotting a line about his middle and making as fast to it he jumped into the sea and swam to Robertson, a veritable purpose of a sea cook with a soul as big as all outdoors.

The ship had some way to go and could not be wholly stopped. It happened, therefore, that when the cook grabbed the quartermaster they were slowly towed through the seas. The strain was terrific and the rope nearly cut the cook in two, but he clung to his man until they were fetched alongside and hoisted aboard together.

The quartermaster was unconscious, and the cook also collapsed on deck, but was thawed out with no serious damage. This Joseph Martino was promoted to the rating of chief commissary steward in recognition of the deed and was recommended for the gold life-saving medal of the navy department.

Clark's Day Dream.
In an address in Washington some time ago Speaker Clark said, according to the Pathfinder, that if he should suddenly find himself possessed of the wealth of a Rockefeller the first thing he would do would be to establish a publishing house in St. Louis, Mo. "Then," he said, "I'd publish an unabridged dictionary, with words pronounced the way the people of the country pronounce them, and put it on the market to compete with those composed by somebody up in a garret who's trying to make people here talk like those in England.

The next thing I'd do would be to have a real history of the United States composed and published under my supervision. If so I would give the people who have done things credit."

Ship on Girl's Back See in Society.
A ship on a girl's back is a bar to her entrance into society, according to State Senator Alfred J. Gilchrist, of New York city. The senator declares that a Brooklyn girl is deprived of society because, when ten years old, a ship may tethered on the girl's back. She cannot wear a fashionable, low-neck dress because of the spreading salts across the ocean on her back. The senator, therefore, calls for a law imposing a fine of $100 for any one who wears a young woman's jewelry,

DIFFER OVER ORIGIN OF DOG

Whether All Kinds Had a Common Ancestor Has Long Been a Matter of Debate.

The ancestry of the dog has been the occasion of much controversy, according to Leo R. Crandall's book, "Pets." Many naturalists have considered that it is descended from a single ancestor, such as the common wolf of Europe. Darwin, however, leaned toward the theory of multiple origin, and advanced much convincing proof in support of his belief. It is widely known that many savage tribes have dogs, which appear to be simply half-tamed representatives of the peculiar wild doglike animals inhabiting the same regions.

The dogs of the American plains Indians closely resemble the small prairie wolf, or coyote; the bushy tail of the north country is plainly not far removed from the gray wolf; the German sheep dog and the Samoyede are strikingly wolflike in appearance. Whether our present dogs are the result of crossing these many simple derivatives of wolves and jackals among themselves, or whether there was an original ancestral dog, now extinct, with which the blood of other species has become mingled, we have not yet been able to determine, though as many primordial animal remains have come to light.

According to Dr. George Minot, the dog is the only wild dog still existing which meets the requirements of an ancestor of our modern breed. This species is found throughout Australia and found bones which have been found show its presence there from very early times.

MOLLUSKS MAKE GOOD SOUP

Thrown Up on Florida Beaches by the Waves They Are Collected and Sold to Hotels.

Along the Florida beaches a very common and familiar kind of rock is wholly composed of the shells of a small species of mollusk, oval in shape and half as long. It is called "vogaine," and is hard on the feet if one walks over it without shoes.

In beds below the line of low tide are mollusks of the same kind, olive. Their bivalve shells are pink, blue and other colors, quite brilliant; and in places the beaches are beautiful to the eye, great numbers of them being thrown up by the waves along the shore.

Under such circumstances they soon die, of course, leaving their pretty shells to adorn the strand. But there are always plenty of live ones at the water's edge, and these are gathered in quantity at most of the winter resorts by boys who collect them with rakes and carry them in baskets to the hotels for sale.

They are used for soup, being reduced to a pulp in order to extract their juice. The latter, strained and boiled, affords a very delicious table beverage known as "vogaine broth." It is particularly recommended for invalids and persons with weak digestion.

The Day of Spring.

When the day of spring is bursting the fetters of winter the general human heart beats high. A few of us philosophers receive amid the tick-tock sober fits of autumn a happiness that we would not exchange for any other season, but we are a minority, and small. The head of one of the most important departments at Washington, who thinks about the processes of manhood, has a theory that makes a regular curve of the relation of the seasons to the appetite for war. As the buds open, every nation thinks it is on the side of victory. This curve rises for a while, begins to decline in the summer and goes well down in the autumn. The period therefore, when statesmen, if they had decided to make peace, could do it most easily, is from the days of goldenrod and autumn leaves to just before the greening of the buds. The story of coal, a tragic story in the past helps this curve, but there is in it much of sheer poetry, independent of more solid things.—Nature Happened in Leslie's.
